Closing Within Three Weeks Predicted; Would Have Little Effect on the Average Large Industry.

(By The Associated Press.) Chicago, Oct. 16 (by the Asso ciated Press.)—A railroad strike would have little effect on the average large industry of the middle west, but would result in closing all packing plants within three weeks and undoubtedly would force many small factories to close, representa-tives of some of the chief indus-tries of this region said tonight. Tentative plans were being drawn through which it was said Chicago and the larger cities could be kept supplied with most food commodities although it was believed meat supplies would run short quickly. One packing official said that the

One packing official said that the packers had been operating at only 35 per cent normal strength for more than a year and that as they were dependent on the railroads, they could not operate during a railroad strike. Approximately 75,000 men would be thrown out of work through closing of the big five packing plants, officials said. Automobile dealers said their business might even be increased by a strike through consequent increased demand for cars. City officials declared that they would take action to conserve the city's food supplies the minute the strike started. Tentative plans, as arranged by local officials, call for arranged by local officials, call for mobilization of 2,500 trucks in which to bring supplies here.
